“Optimizing Your Dental Practice with CBCT technology”

Optimizing your dental practice with CBCT technology explores how Cone Beam Computed Tomography (CBCT) can elevate diagnostic accuracy and efficiency in modern dental practices. This session will cover essential aspects including workflow integration, proper coding and reimbursement strategies, scanning protocols, and common limitations and artifacts to be aware of. Attendees will also gain insights into effective reporting methods and review real world cases that highlight the clinical value of CBCT. This comprehensive overview aims to help dental professionals maximize the benefits of CBCT technology while ensuring optimal patient care.

Dr. Andrew Pakchoian received his DDS degree from the University of Maryland in Baltimore in 2010. He subsequently joined the US Navy as a direct accession officer development school that summer in Newport, RI. He then completed a General Practice Residency at Naval Medical Center San Diego in 2011. His first duty station was in Okinawa, Japan as a green side general dentist with the Marines. He was sent to out service training for Oral & Maxillofacial Radiology at the University of Connecticut Health Center completing the program in 2016 with both a certificate and Masters of Dental Science degree. In 2016, he also became of Diplomate of the American board of Oral & Maxillofacial Radiology. As a radiologist in the Navy he was stationed in Naples, Italy for 4 years and subsequently Camp Pendleton Naval Hospital prior to separating from service in 2022. During his tenure as a Navy radiologist he worked in the hospital radiology department alongside medical radiologists reading a variety of head and neck CT and MRI cases.
